

Solaris

She found love in a dream,
in a mallow flower,
Kissing gently the wings
of an enamored lover.

Every song is full of sighs.

With the whisper of leaves,
her head tilts closer,
Sensing blossoming winds
Brush her shoulders.

Solaris dreams of eyes that call her own!
Solaris knows love is waking!
Solaris dreams of smiles for her alone!
Solaris knows love is waking!

As she sways, half asleep,
the reeds lean closer.
And caressing her feet,
they gently glow.

Then appears, in broken light, your face!